

In 2018 I was hospitalized in Mexico with what we thought was just a bacterial infection. By the time I made it home to the US, I was bedridden, unable to walk to my mailbox, agoraphobic and unable to keep any food in my system. I went to every doctor (internists, GI, cardiologist, ENT, infectious disease at Johns Hopkins, emergency room, etc.), had all the scans & bloodwork (MRI, colonoscopy, endoscopy, etc.), and everyone said I was "healthy as an ox" except for a little dehydration and malnourishment. I was forced to try alternative and holistic medicine because I had nowhere else to turn and was slowly losing my will to live. BioEnergetix Rebalancing Therapy was a game changer for me. After one dose of the all natural supplements, the chronic diarrhea I had had for about six months straight immediately stopped. It took several months to regain my strength, but the improvements were obvious, and I was being listened to by the BRT practitioner when other doctors told me it was all in my head because their tests were coming back clear. Today, I am back to doing what I love and able to understand my body better than ever before. Without alternative healthcare, I would have lost my will to live. Not every body responds to the same treatment the same way. This is why we need options--so that we can pursue what works for our individual bodies.
