

In my work in pregnancy care centers, on campuses with literature about fetal development, and sidewalk counseling and vigils, I have always found women who regret their abortions and wish they had had more time to make an informed decision and someone who had told them the truth that an abortion is the murder of an unborn child.

The bills being discussed on March 19 provide wait time and informed consent. They give women who choose abortion a person with medical background. They provide for accurate reporting on abortion numbers.

I support them all.
