POVERTY FREE MARYLAND

Poverty Free Maryland envisions a Maryland without poverty, and a future where all Marylanders have the support and economic stability that's needed to thrive.

Currently in Maryland, landlords can evict a tenant without a stated reason and as a result many Marylanders are facing severe housing instability. In our state, 5,000+ families are made homeless each year because of an eviction and more than 30,000 Marylanders experience homelessness each year. There is a dire need to curb evictions and keep Marylanders rooted in our communities.

SB462 would allow local jurisdictions the ability to pass "good cause" laws, which simply require transparency and accountability from landlords for why they are choosing to evict a tenant. Again, this is local enabling legislation – not a state mandate – so that counties may pass good cause within the framework of their housing needs and master plan. Maryland is one of only five states that explicitly prohibits counties from passing Good Cause Eviction laws.

The current law in Maryland allows for landlords to remove tenants from their homes without needing to provide a reason. This creates fear and disempowers tenants from holding landlords and property managers accountable for fixing uninhabitable living conditions. SB462 would allow renters to exercise their rights and engage with landlords, property managers, and government agencies without fear of retaliation or discrimination, i.e., to have some security in their homes, school system, and support network. SB462 also has an exemption for small landlords, which keeps the focus on larger landlord accountability.

At least 8 states (California, Colorado, Connecticut, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, and Washington) have passed their own statewide good cause eviction laws. It's time for Maryland to join the ranks of these leaders in renters rights.
