

Dear Senator Alonzo T. Washington,

My name is Tanishia Robinson, and I am writing to you in honor of my daughter, Zoey Rose Marie Harrison. I respectfully ask for your continued support in helping Zoey's Law become a reality—not only for my family, but for the many families who have suffered in silence.

Zoey's story is not an isolated incident. This type of situation has now occurred three times, each time involving innocent civilians. That alone demonstrates this is not just a tragedy—it is a pattern, and one that must be addressed. No family should have to endure this level of loss, confusion, and heartbreak, and no child should ever be placed in harm's way due to systemic failure.

Losing Zoey has forever changed me. The impact has been emotional, mental, and spiritual, and the weight of this loss does not fade with time. Our family carries it every single day. While grief can feel unbearable, what hurts just as deeply is knowing this could happen again to another child if nothing changes.

Zoey's Law is not just about my daughter. It is about protecting children, holding systems accountable, and creating safer communities. This legislation would bring awareness, structure, and responsibility where there is currently a gap. It would help prevent future tragedies, ensure proper oversight, and send a clear message that our children's lives matter and deserve protection.

This law gives families like mine a voice. It gives purpose to Zoey's life and ensures that her story leads to meaningful change. No parent should have to stand where I stand today—seeking justice after loss. We should be protecting our children before it is too late.

Thank you for taking the time to hear my story and for standing with families seeking change. I truly believe Zoey's Law can save lives and help create a safer future for our children and our communities.

Sincerely,
Tanishia Robinson
