I do not believe the mandatory retirement age for judges should be increased. In fact, it should be decreased. I do not like the thought of someone in their 70s making life-altering decisions for young people. Many people get stuck in their ways as they get older, and I want judges to be flexible and empathetic. It would be better for the economy to give young people the chance to serve as judges. We do not want to give judges the opportunity to sit in their seats for decades and decades.
