I agree with limiting the use of electronic communication devices in school. I am highly concerned about the effects of social media on young people's brains. It leads to anxiety, depression, and suicide. I will never buy my son a smartphone, and I would appreciate it if he weren't exposed to social media at school. I read a study that showed that the more electronics were used as an educational tool, the less information kids and teens and kids retained. Steve Jobs didn't even give his own kids iPads. They are horrible for the developing brain.
